Theyyam is one of the well known festivals of Kerala where spirits through various dance forms depict the stories of devas. One such spirit is the Vayanattu Kulavan who was initially blinded by Lord Shiva for his selfishness. However the spirit atoned for his sins and gained the gift of divine sight from the Lord. Vayanattu Kulavan is believed to remain in the mortal world and during the festival of theyyam reveals himself, and through his divine sight looks into the hearts of people, shows them their deepest desires & fears and guides them away from selfish and evil thoughts.

Dear ALL,
I Thank all the students and faculty members for spreading the message of the QUIZ - Test organized by our Department. It has got a huge response across the country and over 1100 participants have attempted the test. Many people are still writing emails with appreciation and my email box flooded with so many responses. Flipside of the story is that, today while going through the statistics of the participants, many of our Department students including research scholars have not attempted the test. I have given wide publicity as much as possible and I tried to reach everyone. If you are missed/unaware of this event, this is the last chance. The main purpose of conducting this test is to make you aware of the significance of the Chemistry in addressing the latest COVID-19 pandemic.
I advise all of you to attempt the test without fail. The form will be closed by tomorrow, 11:00 pm automatically.
If you face any technical issues to attempt the event, you can write to me.
Those who attempted the test may ignore this email.

Top scientists field volley of questions from students

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kasaragod

"WHY can't non-biodegradable waste be shipped to the outer space?" "Can scientists recreate extinct species from DNA?" "Who pollinates aquatic plants?" "Why the coronavirus?" Curious students kept top scientists on their toes as they shot one question after another during an interactive session at the Swadesh Science Congress held at CPCRI on Saturday.

According to the organisers, as many as 443 students from 29 schools took part in the programme. Prof G M Nair, advisor, Kerala Biotechnology Commission, moderated the session. Some of the scientists who had to field the volley of questions were CPCRI director Anitha Karun, Photonics professor V P N Nampoori, space scientist V P Balagangadharan, Prof Reji Philip from Raman Research Institute in Bengaluru and toxicologist Mohanan P V of Sree Chitra Tirunal Institute for Medical Sciences and Technology.

Gagan of Basel Evangelical Mission, Kasaragod, wanted to know who pollinated aquatic plants. "For plants that flower above the water level, it's the water that carries the pollen. But underwater plants do not flower. They instead release reproductive cells into the water, which may or may not encounter other such cells for reproduction. It's a matter of chance," explained the scientists.

Students interact with scientists during an interactive session at the Swadesh Science Congress held in Kasaragod at CPCRI on Saturday

Arathi Sajeevan of CMI Christ School near Kanhangad asked if paste and ointment were solid or liquid.

"Paste behaves like solid matter when low or no stress is applied. It begins to flow when the stress applied is high. Such matter is called Bingham plastic, named after Eugene C Bingham."

Marium Kausa of C H Mohammed Koya Memorial Senior Secondary School sought to know if GM crops were a boon or a hazard. Prof G M Nair replied that only safe genes were used to produce genetically modified food.

"Before GM crops hit the market, they undergo a lot of safety tests. We have to select the gene carefully and run tests to ensure there are no side-effects," he said.

1. Study tour

The 29 students of M.Sc. Second Semester left CUK on 5th February 2019 for a 6-day study tour between 6th February to 11th February 2019. The students were accompanied by one male faculty and one female faculty- Prof. Dennis Thomas T and Dr. Jasmine M Shah.

2. Major aims of the study tour

Since the study tour is a part of M.Sc. curriculum, the main aim of this study tour is to introduce students with the regions of rich biodiversity, do taxonomical explorations, demonstrate students how to undertake taxonomical research for the discovery, conservation and sustainable management of the plants. The tour also enables students to get acquainted with the real issues related to plants, threats they are facing, their conservation and management.

3. Main regions of biodiversity and Research Institutes visited

The students mainly visited several institutes and botanical gardens during this tour. They visited National Centre for Biological Sciences (NCBS), Bangalore, Indo-American Hybrid Seeds Institute (IAHS), Bangalore, Vrindaban Garden, Mysuru (Biodiversity), Lalbagh Botanical Garden, Bangalore and Dandeli, Karnataka for collection of plants.

Twenty-nine students of M.Sc. Second semester Plant Science accompanied by 2 teaching faculties of department of plant science visited Bangalore and Dandeli as a part of Second semester curriculum. The study tour was scheduled from 6th to 11th of February 2019. Bangalore was destined as a location to have 2 institutional visits; namely, NCBS (National Centre for Biological Sciences) and IAHS (Indo-American Hybrid Seed Institute). Students reached NCBS on 7th February by 11.30 Am. Students were guided by Prof. Shivaprasad, who gave them an informative lecture on Epigenetics, small RNAs, microRNAs, Laccases and Phenyl propanol pathway. Then, the students were also taken to their tissue culture lab. The researcher who guided students was working on DJ1D gene; which was important for plant development and immunity. The gene is present in Arabidopsis plant and is transferred to tobacco via gene transfer methods and the tobacco is tissue cultured to check the presence of the above-mentioned gene. What was surprising was that they even experiment on different types of plants. They have spoken students that they were approached by eminent institutes to try gene transfer and tissue culture on rubber. students also visited the greenhouse facility of the institute. The tobacco plants of different sizes were seen. Some were even tagged for the research purposes. The experts demonstrated the sophisticated technologies like HPLC, NMR spectrometer etc.

Next day (08/02/2019), we visited IAHS (Indo-American Hybrid Seed Institute) at 1 pm. Dr. Jayachandran guided us to visit the various facilities in the institute like Greenhouse, Hydroponics and Biotechnology lab. He also gave an informative lecture about the achievements and working of IAHS in the field of hybrid seed development in India. It is one of the pioneer institutes in India, which developed hybrid technologies. IAHS was the first institute which introduced Greenhouse in India in 1965. Highly scientific polycarbonate fibre glass sheets have been used for it. In green house, students came across aeroponics and were also informed about the green house environment maintenance. The ongoing research were mainly focussed on fields like tissue culture, molecular biology etc. Students were also informed about various internship programs. Visitors have access to their hybrid seeds and various ornamental plants. They have wide variety of bonsai and succulent collections.

9/02/2019 Humpi which is a dry and arid region was our next destination. The place hosted dry and rocky topography and supported xerophytic vegetation such as succulents and cactus which were found in most of the places we visited. Major plantations included banana, sugarcane and teak. The region does not have thick forest instead large stretches of grasslands were observed. Dandeli was our destination for collection of plant species for the preparation of dry herbarium specimens as well as digital herbarium.

students visited Dandeli on the last day of study tour. The place had a diverse flora and freshwater algae. They collected algae from the banks of Kali River at an Eco-park. The plant specimens were collected during trekking. After collection, the plants were pressed in herbarium press. The digital herbarium of the collected plant was prepared. Students observed a greater number of Acanthaceae members in the forest and the surroundings. The localities helped in familiarizing some the indigenous species and informed us about their local names and uses. The women of the tribal communities there proved to have great knowledge in the medicinal uses of certain plants which they shared with us. Some of the crops specific to the area were sugar cane, asters etc whose fields were widely distributed. The entire tour was knowledgeable in various aspects. Students explored various climate condition and the respective habitats, flora, fauna of those regions. They were exposed to various cutting-edge technologies along with various techniques of different fields.

4. Outcomes of the study tour

4.1 NCBS (National Centre for Biological Sciences):

The institute aims to provide research facilities in an inexpensive, yet not compromising with the quality of the facilities. They provide research facilities in physics, mathematics, biology and other areas. On our visit to the institute, students were accompanied by the research scholars to their labs. Students were introduced to various new information, that was related to our field of study. The lecture was given by Prof. Shivaprasad, and it was indeed a very interactive session. They got the opportunity to exchange our ideas and brush up our knowledge in our field. After being guided to the labs, we were amazed by the work that they were doing. It was connected to the topics that our students were presently studying in the second semester. They worked gene transfer on different types of plants. On their enquiry, the research scholars told us that they always have a new idea to implement after their present work is complete. They were equally excited to share their ideas and show their instruments to us without any reluctance, even in their busy schedule. Students were also guided to their greenhouse. It was large and had all the tobacco plants that were used for their research purposes. They also showed us the plants that had diseases in them. Students enquired several doubts regarding their works, and they replied with much more enthusiasm. In total, they had an amazing experience at NCBS, both the interactive session with the faculties and research scholars were highly informative. Moreover, attending a lecture in such a prestigious institution was of immense importance to them.

4.2 IAHS (Indo-American Hybrid Seed Institute):

It was on second day of Bangalore visit that we visited IAHS. It is one among the pioneer institutes that developed hybrid technologies in India. We were guided by Dr. Jayachandran, a very experienced professional in the field of hybrid technology. He shared with us, the history and achievements of IAHS. We heard the strive they did to make the institute popularize. The most wonder lies in the fact that even though it is a private institute, it does not focus on its profit. Rather, the main aim of the institute is providing high quality seeds to the farmers. They informed that they even give lectures to farmers and commoners. They also took our students to their greenhouse chamber, which was much larger. Students also learnt aeroponics technique, which. He explained in detail, the works that they do in the institute. Students were taken to their labs and the research guides there explained the works that they proceed with. In close vicinity, could also see the ornamental plants that they sell to visitors. Bonsai plants of Ficus sps. and succulent plants were mainly kept for sale

5. Exploration of biodiversity and learning from the real time field visits

Brindavan Garden, Mysore (Biodiversity), Lalbagh Botanical Garden, Bangalore and Dandeli, Karnataka for collection of plants.

Brindavan Gardens is in Mysuru. The garden is rich in biodiversity with high species richness. The authorities have also maintained the garden well enough for the people and even tourists to get attracted to the site. The rich greenery makes it apt for people to spend their evenings, along with the cool breeze.

Lal Bagh botanical garden is also a place dedicated for the rich biodiversity. The place is also famous for the Flower show that it conducts.

Dandeli in Karnataka is also a place with rich biodiversity. The temperature at the place was warm at the time of our visit, students collected some specimens of the area and pressed it in the herbarium press. Algae was collected from the banks of river Kali areas of forest. The Lantana has small tubular-shaped flowers, each with four petals, which are arranged in clusters at the end of the stems. It's leaves are broadly ovate, opposite, and simple. The flowers come in a variety of colours including red, yellow, white, pink and orange. Its leaves are egg-shaped and have a strong odour when crushed. The Lantana is an undemanding plant and thrives in full sun, is drought-tolerant and can even grow in poor soil. Propagation can be done from cuttings or seeds. It flowers easily and will produce a bushy plant that can grow to two metres.

Uses

Studies conducted in India have found that Lantana leaves can display antimicrobial, fungicidal and insecticidal properties. Lantana camara has also been used in traditional herbal medicines for treating a variety of ailments, including cancer, skin itches, leprosy, rabies, chicken pox, measles, asthma and ulcers.

7. Conclusion

As a part of curriculum, M.Sc. Second semester students of Department of Plant Science went for a 6-day study tour to Mysore, Bangalore, Humpi and Dandeli. The study tour was very informative, and it opened the doors of taxonomical identification and research. They understood various climatic conditions and the plants that survive in these conditions. The sample collection and herbarium preparation from the destinations were done.

They also got the opportunity to visit two prominent institutes in the field of biology. The interactive session with them also proved beneficial for them. They showed and demonstrated various equipment, machines, and technologies used in our area of interest. Students were free to ask any academical queries that popped up in our mind.

In total, the 6 days proved to be useful for us.

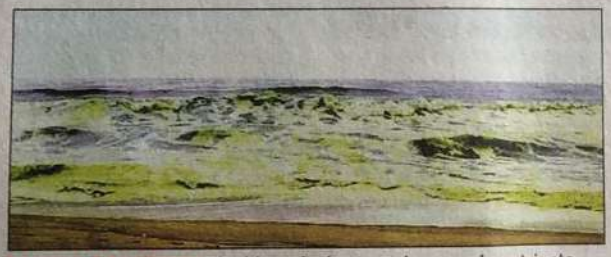
Experts worried about Algal bloom in coast

Deepthi.Sanjiv@timesgroup.com

Mangaluru: As reports of certain areas of the sea turning green emerge, experts are worried about algal blooms reported in various parts of the coast. Harmful algal blooms (HABs) are feared to affect marine populations, especially bivalve mollusks and some species of fishes. The bloom is due to an increase in nutrients like nitrate and phosphate in the seawater received from river water intrusion through monsoon rain. This algal bloom resulted in water turning green in various beaches from Kasaragod in Kerala as well as in coastal Karnataka.



RAISING CONCERNS: The bloom is due to an increase in nutrients like nitrate and phosphate in the seawater received from river water

Dr Shantanu Kalambi from Reef Watch Marine Conservation told TOI that people have noticed the sea turning green in areas off the coast of Karnataka, from Karwar to Surathkal. Algal blooms were recorded in the coastal region of Karnataka last year too, however as there has been very little documentation over the last decade in Coastal Karnataka, it is difficult to comment on the trends or pattern of the algae that are growing, he noted.

"Meanwhile, samples are being collected from Surathkal, Kundapur and Karwar, that will be sent to the College of Fisheries for analysis. It is most likely a unicellular algae such as Noctiluca spp. that is plant-like and similar to what was spotted in Goa last year," he said.

Typically only one or a few phytoplankton species are involved and some blooms may be recognized by discolouration of the water resulting from the high density of pigmented cells. Colours observed are green, yellowish-brown, or red. Bright green blooms may also occur.

Dr K Arun Kumar, HoD of plant science, Central University of Kerala, located in Kasaragod, said that it has been a week since he noticed the algal bloom in the beaches of Kasaragod and Kanhangad in Kerala. "It is known as green tide mainly because of the presence of green alga Hornelia marina which could directly harm the Perna viridis (Asian green mussel) as well as certain fish. Another common algae are dinoflagellate Noctiluca scintillans," he said, adding this green bloom has been reported in the past too. This bloom may have an impact on fish population. The green tide could cause a threat to some fish species. The experts are examining it" he said.

The extract from algae are used to make and other dishes is almost all coastal tries, except India. We wanted to intro- it here and make them popular," said K Kumar, associate professor, Depart- Of Plant Science.

In his lab, Dr Kumar is trying to isolate bioactive compounds from seaweeds and convert seaweed biomass to ethanol.

Last Sunday, he and his students had gone scubadiving off Thikkodi, a small village near Vadakara, for seaweeds for their research. For the science day, the students boiled the seaweeds and squeezed out the jelly extract to make the dishes. "Many students thought we added colour for the bright green look," said a first year student.

Cow dung of native breeds is low-quality manure, finds girl's research

GEORGE POIKAYIL @Kasaragod

MANY traditional organic farmers will vouch for the goodness of cow dung of native cattle such as Vechur and Kasaragod Dwarf — the world's smallest breeds. Not just goodness of the dung, many people claim the milk, dung and urine of the indigenous breeds have medicinal properties, too.

A schoolgirl in Kasaragod decided to scientifically prove the common belief and her results surprised her and the farmers too.

"I found that the cow dung of Kasaragod Dwarf and Vechur is the least efficient among the cow dung of eight native breeds I took for the experiment," said Arunima M, 16, a Plus-One student of Government Higher Secondary School, Bela East near Kanhangad.

Contrary to popular perception, the cow dung of Holstein Friesians, a breed of dairy cattle from the Netherlands, outperformed all other Indian breeds by a huge margin.

Her myth-shattering research done at home is selected from Kasaragod district for the state-level Sathrapatham, the science fair organisation by the Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan.

The experiment

Arunima selected cow dung of eight native breeds from Kapila Gaushala, a farm for native breeds, at Periya and also cow dung of Holstein Friesians from her neighbour's house.

The native breeds are Gir and Kankrej of Gujarat; Gidda and Hallikar of Karnataka; Kasaragod Dwarf, Vechur of Kerala; Ongole of Andhra Pradesh and Kangayam of Tamil Nadu.

She dried the dung of these cows and also Holstein Friesians for uniform application. She took the soil also from the same place and sieved it to remove the stones.

"I decided to grow long beans, okra, and mustard because they grow fast," said Arunima, who comes from a farming family.

She had 10 cups of each plant for every type of dung. "I also sowed the seeds in cups with only the soil without manure. That is the 'control' to see how the dung fare against plain soil," she said.

In all, she sowed plants in 300 cups, all with the same access to sunlight and water. Manuring was done once a week. The control cups were not manured.

As part of the experiment, she decided to check the time the seeds take to germinate, the length of the plant and the length and breadth of the leaves.

Observation

For germination, manuring is not required as the seeds sowed in the control cups and other cups shot up on the third day.

After one week, the long beans sowed in Holstein Friesians dung grew up to 12 cm; whereas the seeds manured by the dung of Kasaragod Dwarf and Vechur grew only 5 cm.

Three seeds of long beans sowed in Hallikar dung grew 13 cm and the rest seven grew only 2 cm tall. In subsequent weeks, the growth petered out compared with Holstein Friesians, she said.

After one week, the plants sowed in the control cups grew 9cm tall.

After 60 days

After 60 days, the long beans manured by Holstein Friesian dung grew to 128 cm long. Long beans manured by the dung of Dwarf and Vechur grew 22 cm long, which is just 2 cm longer than the 'control'.

Long beans manured by the dung of Kankrej and Kangayam cows grew 58cm and 60cm, respectively.

Long beans powered by dungs of Ongole and Halikar grew by 50cm and 51cm, respectively.

The average stem thickness of long beans manured by Holstein dung was 0.8 cm, which was exactly double the thickness of plants that were not manured and also those manured by the dung of Dwarf, Vechur, and Kankrej.

"Arunima's experiment was fuelled by curiosity and completely done at home. It can be replicated by anybody," said Dr Jasmine M Shah, assistant professor, Department of Plant Science, Central University of Kerala. Dr Shah guided and designed the model of the experiment for Arunima.

Organic farmer Narayanan Kannalayam, who has 90 varieties of beans, said he was surprised by the result. "I used the dung of Dwarf for my farming and I thought it is the best," he said.

> Different breeds have different gut microflora, which could be the factor differentiating one dung from another. A metagenome analysis can find the microflora diversity in the gut. But for a school student, she can complete the experiment by looking at the yield — Dr Shah

'Feeds matter not breeds'

Dr P R Suresh, dean of College of Agriculture, Padannakkad, said the feeds determine the quality of dung. "The dung of Holstein fared better because it is given better feeds as it is a dairy cow," he said.

He said the feed, animal's age, and milking status determines the nutrition in dung. "Milking cows are fed better so their dung will be better," he said. However, Dr Shah said if that is the case, the dungs of the Indian breeds were taken from the same farm, but their performance varied. The Kasaragod Dwarf, whose dung was used, is a milking cow too, said Arunima.

Farm owner Nagarsna S Hegde said all the native breeds in her farm are given the same feed. "Their intake differs on their size," she said.

Inaugural Function

Training Session

The first and second session of the Three-day capacity building programme for the school counsellors was handled by Dr Shweth K T, Director of Anirvedha Resource Centre for Psychological Well-Being, Mangalore. The trainer introduced and reinstated participants knowledge on counselling. Counselling is a concept that has existed for a long time. We have sought through the ages to understand ourselves, offer counsel and develop our potential, become aware of opportunities and, in general, help ourselves in ways associated with formal guidance practice. In most communities, there has been, and there still is, a deeply embedded conviction that, under proper conditions, people can help others with their problems. Some people help others find ways of dealing with, solving, or transcending problems. In schools, if the collaboration between teachers and students is good, students learn in a practical way. Young people develop degrees of freedom in their lives as they become aware of options and take advantage of them. At its best, helping should enable people to throw off chains and manage life situations effectively. Counselling, in different forms and with different interpretations, has existed in societies for a long time. Counselling has now become institutionalized. Schools, for example, have to a large extent taken over the task of providing psychological support to boys and girls. The differences and contradictions in present-day counselling have their origin in the social and historical forces that have shaped modern culture. People in all societies, and at all times, have experienced emotional or psychological distress and behavioural problems. In each culture, there have been well established ways and methods of helping individuals with their problems. Counselling is a learning-oriented process, which occurs usually in an interactive relationship, with the aim of helping a person learn more about the self, and to use such understanding to enable the person to become an effective member of society. Counselling is a process by means of which the helper expresses care and concern towards the person with a problem, and facilitates that person's personal growth and brings about change through self knowledge.

Ms. Shweth KT: Counselling

Dr Shweth K T discussed the importance of rapport building, empathy, paraphrasing and difficulties of self-disclosure in the school counselling. The trainer also conducted a paraphrasing exercise which assures the client that the counsellor is actively listening. Further, a role play of student - counsellor interaction was also conducted. The trainer concluded the session by discussing the important cases the trainer handled during her career.

Training Session

The first and second session of the Three-day capacity building programme for the school counsellors was handled by Dr Shweth K T, Director of Anirvedha Resource Centre for Psychological Well-Being, Mangalore. The trainer introduced and reinstated participants knowledge on counselling. Counselling is a concept that has existed for a long time. We have sought through the ages to understand ourselves, offer counsel and develop our potential, become aware of opportunities and, in general, help ourselves in ways associated with formal guidance practice. In most communities, there has been, and there still is, a deeply embedded conviction that, under proper conditions, people can help others with their problems. Some people help others find ways of dealing with, solving, or transcending problems. In schools, if the collaboration between teachers and students is good, students learn in a practical way. Young people develop degrees of freedom in their lives as they become aware of options and take advantage of them. At its best, helping should enable people to throw off chains and manage life situations effectively. Counselling, in different forms and with different interpretations, has existed in societies for a long time. Counselling has now become institutionalized. Schools, for example, have to a large extent taken over the task of providing psychological support to boys and girls. The differences and contradictions in present-day counselling have their origin in the social and historical forces that have shaped modern culture. People in all societies, and at all times, have experienced emotional or psychological distress and behavioural problems. In each culture, there have been well established ways and methods of helping individuals with their problems. Counselling is a learning-oriented process, which occurs usually in an interactive relationship, with the aim of helping a person learn more about the self, and to use such understanding to enable the person to become an effective member of society. Counselling is a process by means of which the helper expresses care and concern towards the person with a problem, and facilitates that person's personal growth and brings about change through self knowledge.

Ms. Shweth KT: Counselling

Dr Shweth K T discussed the importance of rapport building, empathy, paraphrasing and difficulties of self-disclosure in the school counselling. Process

Problem of waste is the major issue that faced by Kasaragod district. Disposing of waste has huge environmental impacts and can cause serious problems. There is no adequate waste management project under Kasaragod Municipality.. Poor waste management contributes to climate change, air pollution and directly affects all organisms. From the above situations Kasaragod municipality decided to introduce a new project for waste management under Haritha karma sena'. This project mainly aimed at plastic free city. And it mainly decided to work out through Kudumbasree. Under this municipality should inform the community and people need to keep plastic in their own homes. And Kudumbasree members will collect these all plastic at the T rates and this plastic will transform to plastic recycling shed. Other wastes should managed by people themselves. Under this project municipality only focus on most dangerous plastic.

By understanding this fact a community programme about Waste management conducted on Kasaba kadappuram. In coastal area there is no definite method for waste management. They put all kinds of waste in their surroundings as well as the coast of the sea. The limited place and adjacent housesof kadappuram are major issues for doing a proper waste management. The life of kadappuram people connected with sea and fishing. Majority of people engaged in fishing. And plastic adversely effect on the sea and fish. Plastic pollution impacts sea turtles, whales, seabirds, fish, coral reefs and countless other marine species and habitats. By decreasing the amount of fish it adversely effect on the living condition of the people who connected with fishing. Because of that a class on waste management is very important in kadappuram.

An MSW student's perseverance reunites woman with family after 30 yrs

GEORGE POIKAYIL @Kasargod

RATHILAKSHMI (62) is back home, after 30 years. So is the spark in her eyes. Her family in Kozhikode had given up on her thinking she was dead.

The long-lost family reunited partially because of an innocuous question Malayalees always use to break the ice: Evideya naadu? (Where are you from?) And partially because she put that question to Sarun Marunnoli, 23, a "rugged" student of social work at the Central University of Kerala.

As part of his course work, Sarun's guide Dr Laxmi (who uses only the first name) assigned him to the government's old-age home at Paravanadukkam in Kasargod. "I met Rathilakshmi at the old age home sometime in mid August," says Sarun. "One of the first questions she asked me was where was I from," he says.

When Sarun told the elderly woman that he was from Edacheri panchayat in Kozhikode, she started opening up. She told him that she too was from Nadakkavu, a commercial area in Kozhikode city. She also told Sarun that she had a younger brother, Balan, who used to work at a banana chips making shop at Nadakkavu. "She told me that she wanted to meet him," he said.

Sarun did not promise Rathilakshmi anything, but the very next Saturday, he was at Nadakkavu. He was joined by his childhood friends Anushree Sathyan, a journalism graduate, and Adarsh M, a junior automobile engineer. The trio went to every other banana chips shop at Nadakkavu asking for Balan. "By afternoon, two shopkeepers said they had employed one Balan long time ago, and that he had started his own shop at Puthiyapalam," Sarun said. Another shopkeeper took the three young address hunters to Balan's ancestral house at Nadakkavu. "But they had sold the house and moved out," he said.

MSW student Sarun Marunnoli with Rathilakshmi and her niece Ramani

On September 22, the three started their search again at Puthiyapalam. "Around 7.30 pm, we were at the doorstep of Balan's house. His wife Rajitha and their daughter were at home," said Sarun.

Rajitha vividly remembered Rathilakshmi. Her daughter, who is now 30 years old, has heard of the missing aunt from her father. "We really thought she was not alive," Rajitha told Sarun. Sarun left his phone number with her for Balan to call back. "In an hour, he called back," he said.

Sarun then set up the grand reunion. Last Tuesday, Balan, Rathilakshmi's elder sister Radha's son Gopi, daughter Ramani and her husband Kishore came to Kasargod and took her away from the old age home. "She is now staying with Gopi, who runs small eatery in front of Baby Memorial Hospital in Kozhikode," says Sarun.

Rathilakshmi said she went into a depression after her husband died and she left home 30 years ago. She worked as a domestic help in Kasargod, and when her health failed her, she ended up at the old age home three years ago.

LOVE FOR LIFE

Sarun said his experience of finding hope at the bleakest of times helped him reunite the family. His father Raveendra M (48) was bedridden with osteoporosis of the spine. "After several years of treatment at Sree Chitra Tirunal Institute for Medical Sciences in Thiruvananthapuram, he started walking just eight months ago. Now, he sells lottery for a living," he said. His mother, Sathi (40) was diagnosed with cancer when he was in class XII. "I had joined BCom in a regular college but dropped out because we had to manage the treatment of our parents," he said. Sathi too is on the path of recovery. Sarun then signed up for distance education with Calicut University for his graduation and then joined MSW in Central University. "All through the years, my brother Rasil supported us by driving autorickshaw in our village," he said.

Technology is playing an increasingly crucial role in the delivery of education, which in turns in drying process into finding a better technological solutions. The application of educational technology has created a new teaching and learning concept is cybergogy. One of the central elements of cybergogy is the intent to combine fundamentals of both pedagogy and androgogy to arrive at a new approach to learning. And also this program provided an opportunity to the participants to explore some of the various innovative technology and hand tools like google apps, mobile apps and other digital tools .the community sensitization program would be a powerful tool to constitute a positive institutional climate and college charity among teachers working in higher education.

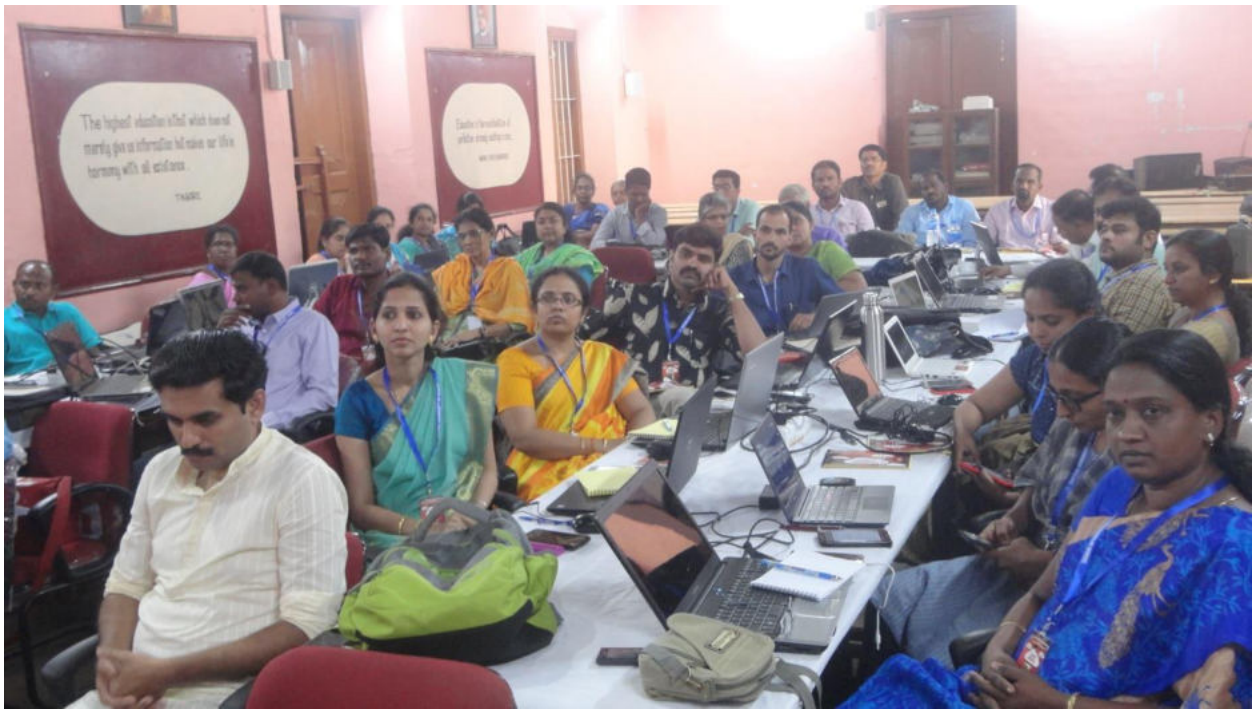
36 participants attended the programme.4 resource persons from all across the country delivered lectures and interacted with the participants. The feedback from participants shows that the programme was very effective.



CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF KERALA

3 - 4 November 2018

The Department of Computer Science, Central University of Kerala started functioning in August 2011 and offers MSc and PhD programmes in Computer Science with specialization in Intelligent Systems. The Pandit Madan Mohan Malavia National Mission on Teachers and Teaching (PMMMNMTT), School of Education (SoE) was established in 2016 as a project funded by the Ministry of Human Resource Development, Govt. of India.

The Department of Computer Science in association with PMMMNMTT is planning to conduct a two days training for high school and higher secondary school teachers on recent developments in computer science. The training will help to understand the recent developments and research in computer science. Most importantly, the training will help the teachers to answer the question raised by the students (based on the recent news in magazines/newspapers/publications etc). This training programme will enable the teachers to have a platform for open discussions with the faculty and experts.

The topic of discussion may include the following

- Introduction to Computer Science
- Data Mining
- Image Processing
- Fuzzy Logic
- Genetic Algorithm
- Speech and Signal processing
- Pattern Recognition/classification
- Network security
- Wireless sensor networks
- Matlab
- Latex
- Neural networks

We request you to depute computer science teachers for the training. We request you to kindly register through the following Google link:

Report of the workshop on

COMPREHENSIVE TEACHING METHODS FOR GEOGRAPHY IN SCHOOLS

Under the PMMMNMTT programme of Central University of Kerala

Earth science education, one of the important goals towards the sustainable development of any nation, is a key player in the global empowerment. Our country has some aspiring goals towards a global super power by 2050. To achieve the same we must take some serious measures in our education system. Many of the nations around the world were able to achieve so much in science and technology, because of their advancements in the modern day education. Past few decades we witnessed a drastic decrease in the quality of the secondary school education system in Kerala. Major degradations were noticed in the social science stream, especially in geography. Academic investigations on this serious problem point towards the dearth of a competent training platform among the secondary school teaching fraternity.

Secondary School education is the turning point in a student career. There for, proper and potential teaching is the basic rights of a student. Most of the students in the backward regions were struggling with the present curriculum. Even though the teachers are eligible, lack of training makes them impotent. Our programme was designed to empower those teachers with potential training and proper exposures. In that programme we invited eminent people from various universities to train the teachers towards a global standard.

We the Department of Geology, decide to address the problem in a challenging manner. We had conducted a capacity building workshop for geography teachers on comprehensive geography teaching. In this connection the Department of Geology and PMMMNMTT jointly organized a three day workshop on "Comprehensive Teaching Methods for Geography in Schools" from 14th to 16th December 2018 at the Department of Geology. Due to an unexpected national strike we have redesigned the programme to 15th to 16th December 2018. The target group for this programme were the social science teachers of Kasaragod district, who teach Geography at the high school level. Teachers from various schools from the district attended the workshop. We know that, it is impossible to change the system in an overnight manner. But we attempted the same through the PMMMNMTT programme of our university to address it in a noble manner on a limited extent. Since our university belongs to Kasargod district, as it belongs to a socially backward region in the North Malabar, the implementation of the programme was designed specifically for the Kasargod district. We decided to take up further in terms of our university's social commitment and regional development policy.

About the University

The Central University of Kerala, Kasaragod, came into being in 2009 under the Central Universities Act 2009 (Parliament Act No. 25 of 2009). The University is found on the noble vision of a 'caring wisdom' and is guided by the lofty ideals of academic and social commitment, moral steadfastness and intellectual and spiritual enlightenment, as reflected in its vision statement. Located in a region characterized by linguistic and ethnic diversity and cultural richness, the University seeks to harness the local resources – human, intellectual, social, artistic and cultural – while bringing in the best that is globally available, thus maintaining a fruitful, symbiotic relationship with a region that badly needs an educational uplift. The permanent campus of the University (Tejaswini Hills) is located at Periye, Kasaragod on the 310 acres of land allocated by the Govt. of Kerala in 2012. North Malabar region, being one of the backward districts of Kerala, need holistic support for development especially in the areas of education health, technology and infrastructure and which are the focus of the university administrations since inception.

As a part of the project the Department of Education is organising various academic and research programmes for faculties at different level.

About the Workshop

Earth's climate is now changing faster than at any point in the history of modern civilization, primarily because of human activities. Global climate change has already resulted in a wide range of impacts across every region of the country and various sectors of economy that are expected to grow in the coming decades. The knowledge of climate change, impacts, and trends across regions and sectors are very much vital for decision-making and resilience-building activities across the country. It is a high time to know the most comprehensive and authoritative assessment to date on the state of knowledge of current and future impacts of climate change on society. In order to understand the scenario, Central University of Kerala is organizing a five days' workshop on learning to address climate change. The workshop is designed in such a way that the participants will gain the theoretical understanding of climate change related issues, as well as science-based information. The workshop will enable the participants to understand the consensual paradigm for dealing with the complex challenges presented by climate change and realise that climate change science is an integral part of public education. Participants will gain practical knowledge from group exercises and field trip with the aim of better understanding existing problems in climate change. Participants will get the networking opportunities with climate change specialists and facilitators, which will be helpful in their future. At the end of the workshop, participants should give a presentation of their understanding of climate change. The workshop therefore is a platform for the college faculties to acquire knowledge and to disseminate them in their classrooms.

The need of the hour is to develop a sound methodological base of research among the budding educationists and researchers to cope up with future challenges. A good research methodology is the key to sound research output. To operationalize this vision, there is a need to train, reorient and reactivate the research scholars in the social science discipline on research methodology. With this broad objective of empowering research scholars, a five-day e-workshop on Data and Statistics for Social Sciences: Data Analysis Tools was organized.

About the workshop

A five-day e-workshop on Data and Statistics for Social Sciences: Data Analysis Tools was organized by the Department of Education, Central University of Kerala under PMMMNTT scheme from 27/10/2020 to 31/10/2020. The workshop started with an inaugural session presided over by Prof Amruth G Kumar (Head of the Department of Education & Project Head of PMMMNTT, Central University of Kerala) and the programme was inaugurated by Prof. Muhammadenunni Elias Mustafa, (Dean of School of Education, Central University of Kerala). Former Dean and the Head of the Department of Education, Prof. K P Suresh felicitated the virtual event. Dr.K Thaiygu (Assistant professor, Department of Education Central University of Kerala) organizing secretary of the workshop offered the welcome address and Dr Vanitha C (Assistant Professor, Department of Education, CUK) delivered the vote of thanks for the inaugural session.

The E- workshop has two sessions in each day (1) from 11.00 AM to 12.30 PM and (2) 3.00 PM to 4.00 PM. The main focus of the workshop was to provide hands-on experience for data analysis using different data analysis tools such as Excel, SPSS, BlueSky Statistics, JAMOVI & JASP. 60 selected Full-time PhD research scholars from all over India were the participants of the workshop. To ensure the engagement of the participants and to evaluate their learned knowledge, online quizzes and assignments were given for each day. Google Classroom and Google meet were the two digital platforms utilized for this virtual workshop. The learning materials for future reference were also shared via Google Classroom.

A specific feedback from Dr. N. Raman on the program

Respected and dear Professor,

I am Dr.N.Raman, one of the participants in the 'Five Day Online Training for College Teachers on Recent Advances in Inorganic Chemistry', organized by you and your team from 05.03.2021 to 09.03.2021.

On behalf of all the participants, I express my heartfelt thanks to you and your team for the excellent organization of the Training Programme. I express my gratitude for having given me a golden opportunity to participate in the Training to hear the fabulous lectures and interact with the leading Scientists and Professors of our nation in the field of Inorganic Chemistry. Ten Resource Persons from leading Academic and Research Institutions delivered innovative lectures on different topics. All the ten lectures are really very useful and innovative.

The Programme was inaugurated by Prof.R.Murugavel, IIT-Bombay, Mumbai in an excellent manner. He addressed a nice lecture on 'Valance and Subvalence in Main Group Chemistry' . He explained the concept of sub-valence and super-valence of the p-bock elements. He correlated these valences with their structure and detailed why certain p-block elements are able to form trivalent while the elements in the same group are unable to form trivalent and how these elements fulfill their octet rule in an excellent manner. Second lecture by Dr.N.Raman of VHNSN College of Madurai Kamaraj University on Transition Metal Based Anticancer Agents was very useful and interesting. He explained the cause for cancer, how it spreads, the designing of anticancer agents and the mechanism of their function in an excellent way. On 6.3.2021, the first lecture was given by Prof. Rajeev Gupta of University of Delhi on Molecular assemblies and coordination polymers offering hydrogen bonding cavities: Applications in sensing and catalysis' in an excellent way. He explained very well on the size-selective epoxidation and sensing of antibiotics. Prof. M. Padmanabhan of Amrita Vishwa Vidyapeetham gave a wonderful talk on 'Structure-specific molecular design in metalloproteins'. He explained the function of hemoglobin and myoglobin in an excellent way. Oxygen transport was thoroughly explained by him. I have never heard such a wonderful lecture.

Prof. Anil J. Elias of Indian Institute of Technology, New Delhi gave a thought provoking talk on Chemistry of the p block elements: Industrial applications of a few selected elements' on 7.3.2021. He is a role model for an excellent teacher. He discussed the applications of almost all the p-block elements. Prof. M.Sathiyendiran of University of Hyderabad gave a nice talk on Let us cooperate chemically via noncovalent way'. He explained clearly the various weak molecular interactions in an excellent way. He gave a very good explanation for the formation compounds by inert gases.

On 8.3.2021, Prof. S.Natarajan of IISc Bangalore delivered a colourful lecture on Role of transition elements in the design of new inorganic pigments: The importance of coordination chemistry. He discussed very well on the concept of metal–metal charge transfer by citing a number of examples. He easily explained the current inorganic pigments based on the knowledge on coordination chemistry. Prof. T. Gunasekaran of University of Madras delivered a very good and interesting lecture on 'Virtual slicing the crystals: Single crystal XRD'. He demonstrated even in the virtual platform how the X-ray was useful in the study of single crystals in a nice manner. He interpreted the structure of the crystal using the ShelXS-97 in a nice manner .

On 9.3.2021, Prof M. V. Rajasekharan of University of Hyderabad delivered an excellent lecture on Molecular Magnetic Properties: An Introduction'. He thoroughly explained the basic concepts of magnetism and its useful in structural elucidation. He talked very clearly on Molecular nanomagnetics, Vibrating sample magnetometer and Superconducting quantum interference device. The final talk was given by Prof. Dr. H.D. Revanasiddappa of University of Mysore on 'Metal organic framework: Synthesis and applications'. He covered the topics from basics to advanced level in an excellent way.

The resource persons explained the concept in a beautiful and fantastic manner. All the lectures are very effective not only in teaching but also motivating in research field. It is very useful for the College teachers like me to teach our PG students very effectively. As I am doing a little bit research in our department, they are very helpful to me. I really enjoyed your training programme. During this training course, I had a chance to interact with many resource persons in my field through online. Since the participants were from different institutions and different parts of our country, they also raised a number of queries. All the queries were cleared by the resource persons in a nice manner. At this juncture, the organizers made a good job by connecting the resource person and the participant directly*, i.e* they acted as bridges.

We really appreciate your planning and arrangement. Each and every programme was conducted in time. I appreciate the painful effort taken by you and your team in bringing the resource persons from reputed institutions and arranging the session in time and lively. I request you to convey my kind and respectful regards to Prof. Karup and your colleagues, Dr.Bhaghiayalakshmi, Dr.Ravikumar, Dr.Deepa and others. Kindly convey my kind and respectful regards to all of them sir. Usually it is not possible to do this within five days. But you and your team have done this job very beautifully without boring anybody. We think that it is not only a Record Break in the history of your Central University of Kerala but also in the history of an Online Training Programme. I consider this as my academic asset sir. I enjoyed very much sir. I once again thank you and your team for the restless efforts to make the Five Day Training programme in a very grand and successful manner. Finally, I express my sincere and heartfelt gratitude to you, your organizing team, the Department of Chemistry, School of Physical Sciences and Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya National Mission on Teachers and Teaching (PMMMNMTT), School of Education, Central University of Kerala (CUK), Kasaragod for having given me a golden opportunity to participate in this Training Programme.

With your blessings,

Workshop on Probability Theory & its Applications

Department of Mathematics, Central University of Kerala

February 12-16, 2020

WPTA 2020

Probability Theory is an area of Mathematics that deals with random events where we calculate how likely it is for an event to occur. It has found wide ranging applications in many areas because it can be used to make predictions or analyse the most likely events to occur in an experiment and compare these results to theoretical predictions.

The goal of this workshop is to explore the basics of Probability Theory and its Applications through some interesting real life problems.

Report on "Assessment of Hospital Hygiene and Waste Management in Government District Hospital, Kanhangad".

As part of the Swatchata Pakhawada 2017, the National Service Scheme of Central University of Kerala (CUK), conducted a study to assess the "Hospital Hygiene and Waste Management" in District Hospital, Kanhangad on September 22, 2017. A team comprising of 50 volunteers under the student leadership of Dr. Sisira Raj, a post graduate student in the Department of Public Health and Community Medicine, conducted a facility survey using "Kayakalp Assessment Tool" and employed a key informant interview to capture the processes of waste management and maintenance of hospital hygiene. Students were accompanied by Dr. Elezebeth Mathews, NSS Program Officer and Dr. Sibasis Hense, Ms. Jayalakshmi Rajeev, Mr. Kodali Prakash Babu, faculty members of the Department of Public Health and Community Medicine.

The Kayakalp assessment tool assesses the sanitation and hygiene in a public health facility using six parameters namely, hospital/facility upkeep, sanitation and hygiene, waste management, infection control, support services and hygiene promotion.

NSS volunteers were divided into six groups to assess these parameters through a scoring system ranging from 0-2 (0-nil; 1-partial compliance; 2-full compliance). The scores obtained for each parameters for District Hospital, Kanhangad is given in the table below;

Parameters	Scores obtained	Total score
Hospital /facility upkeep	75	100
Sanitation and hygiene	82	100
Waste management	62	100
Infection control	93	100
Support service	37	50
Hygiene promotion	39	50
Total	388	500

The hospital got an overall score of 77.6% which is above the recommended score of 70%.

Following recommendations were made based on the assessment:-

- Re-orientation of the staff on waste management / disposal protocol.
- Ensure to comply with the protocol of floor cleaning, especially in the wards. Use of over-diluted cleaning solution in wards need to be discouraged.
- Sharps disposal container needs to be puncture proof.
- Use of personal protective equipment by staff should be ensured.
- Closure of open drainage system within the hospital is recommended.
- Follow rodent control measures.

- Control mechanisms to restrict entry of animals inside the hospital, especially cats and dogs.
- Maintain records on frequency of cleaning of water tanks and testing the samples for water quality including the services outsourced
- Keep the biomedical waste bins covered

The key informant interview was employed to the nursing superintendent of the hospital, Mrs Latha. Hospital infection control (HIC) doctor and HIC Nurse are in charge of the hospital waste management. The hospital follows the manual guidelines of Department of Quality Assurance, Kasaragod.

The hospital has Grade-2 hospital attendants for collection, handling, storage and disposal of the waste. It segregates the biomedical waste (BMW) in containers and stores in IMAGE (Indian Medical Association Goes Eco-Friendly) room which is collected by IMAGE team for further disposal. Occasionally, the BMW are stored beyond 48 hours. The plastic wastes are handed over to private firm and the general waste is being burned off.

We interviewed one of the patients from fever ward, and she gave a positive feedback about the hospital cleanliness, hygiene and food.

Recommendations:

- The hospital attendants should be trained periodically on waste handling and disposal.
- In-service education for nursing staff to comply with the infection control mechanisms.
- Storage of biomedical waste for more than 48 hours should be discouraged.

7 Day Special Camp – Punarjani @ HOPE – A Living Together with the Challenged Lives

The Volunteers of Vidyanagar NSS Unit of Central University of Kerala grabbed the attention of the public and media through their dedicated service of one fruitful week towards the needy and challenged lives.

It was the first 7 Day Special Camp of the National Service Scheme of CUK, since its inception, which was rightly named as "Punarjani", meaning rebirth, during the first week of February (2 – 8th February). A group of 50 NSS volunteers from Vidyanagar Unit along with their Programme Officer Dr. Pratheesh P. and the University NSS Cell Programme Coordinator Dr. Efthikar Ahamed had a Living Together at HOPE, a charitable NGO at Pilathara in Kannur district which has around 183 inmates affected with Cerebral Palsy, Autism, Acute Physical Disabilities, etc.

HOPE – Health Oriented Projects Establishments – is a charitable trust, located at Pilathara, a small village in the rural frontier of Kannur district, Kerala and has been engaged in philanthropic activities for the past 15 years.

The volunteers, though at the first day was a little shocked to witness the pathetic conditions of the inmates, took the control of HOPE by adopting it as their own home and cooked the food for all and cleaned the premises.

They prepared an organic vegetable garden to the inmates to for a healthy diet. They cleaned the cattle house in the property, dried the cow dung, filled it in the grow bags and used it for vegetable planting.

Most of the inmates in HOPE were suffering the infections from the bed bugs. The volunteers solved this issue by dismantling and disinfecting their bed and wrapping their mattresses with plastic sheets.

To give a new life to the building itself they painted the walls and grills of HOPE which was not just with emulsion, but was with emotions and affections too.

The whole one week, they lived together with the unmarked souls of the world by extending extreme care and love.

യൂണിഫോമിൽ സമപ്പെടുന്നത് വിദ്യാർഥികളുടെ മനസ്സുകളാണെന്ന് വാദം

വസ്ത്രധാരണം ഇഷ്ടാനുസരണം ആകണമെന്ന് പ്രതിവാദം

പെരിയ കേന്ദ്ര സർവകലാശാലയിൽ മാതൃഭൂമി-ഫെഡറൽ ബാങ്ക് 'സ്പീക്ഫോർ ഇന്ത്യ' സംവാദം ഫെഡറൽ ബാങ്ക് രാജപുരം ശാഖ ഹെഡ് വി.വി.പ്രഭാഷ് ഉദ്ഘാടനംചെയ്യുന്നു

പെരിയ ▸ യൂണിഫോം ധരിക്കുന്നത് കേവലം ഒരേ സ്വഭാവത്തിലുള്ള വസ്ത്രം ധരിക്കുന്നുവെന്ന തിനപ്പുറത്തേക്ക് അവരുടെ മനസ്സുകൾ സമപ്പെടുമെന്ന വലിയ തത്ത്വത്തെയാണ് കാണേണ്ടതെന്ന് വാദം. വസ്ത്രം ധരിപ്പിച്ചല്ല ഐക്യമുണ്ടാക്കേണ്ടതെന്നും അവരുടെ സ്വഭാവത്തെ മാറ്റിയെടുത്ത് ഉയർന്ന സംസ്കാരമുള്ളവരും ഉത്തമ പൗരന്മാരുമാക്കി മാറ്റുകയാണ് വേണ്ടതെന്നും പ്രതിവാദം. മാതൃഭൂമിയും ഫെഡറൽ ബാങ്കും കൈകോർത്തുള്ള സ്പീക്ക് ഫോർ ഇന്ത്യ സംവാദത്തിലാണ് വിദ്യാർഥികൾ പരസ്പരം ഉരുളയ്ക്കുപ്പേരിയായി സംസാരിച്ചത്. പെരിയ കേന്ദ്ര സർവകലാശാലയിലായിരുന്നു സംവാദം. 'കലാലയങ്ങളിൽ യൂണിഫോം നിർബന്ധമാക്കേണ്ടതാണ്' എന്ന വിഷയത്തിലായിരുന്നു വാദവും പ്രതിവാദവും. ഇഷ്ടപ്പെട്ട ഭക്ഷണം കഴിക്കാൻ പോലും അനുവദിക്കാത്ത പുതിയ സാഹചര്യത്തിൽ ഇഷ്ടപ്പെട്ട വസ്ത്രം ധരിക്കാനും പാടില്ലെന്ന് പറയുന്നതിൽ അത്ഭുതമില്ല. നമുക്ക് ഇഷ്ടമില്ലാത്ത ഒരു കാര്യത്തെയും അനുകൂലിക്കാതിരിക്കാനുള്ള കരുത്തെങ്കിലും നാം ആർജിച്ചെടുക്കണം. ഇംഗ്ലീഷിലും മലയാളത്തിലുമായി യൂണിഫോം ധാരണത്തെ എതിർത്തു സംസാരിച്ചവർ ഒരു ഭാഗത്ത് കത്തിക്കയറി. ഇഷ്ടപ്പെട്ട ഭക്ഷണം കഴിക്കാൻ അനുവദിക്കാത്തതിനെ സാമ്യപ്പെടുത്തി യൂണിഫോം ധാരണത്തെ കുറിച്ച് സംസാരിക്കുന്നത് അല്ലത്വമാണെന്ന് പറഞ്ഞ എതിർ ടീമുകൾ, യൂണിഫോം സാമ്പത്തിക അസമത്വത്തിൽനിന്ന് വിദ്യാർഥി മനസ്സുകളെ മോചിപ്പിക്കുമെന്ന അർഥവത്തായ ചില പോയിന്റുകളിൽ അടിവരയിട്ടു.

ഓരോരാൾക്കും ഇഷ്ടപ്പെട്ട വർണവസ്ത്രങ്ങൾ അവരുടെ മനസ്സിന്റെ വിശാലതയെ സൃഷ്ടിക്കുമെന്നായിരുന്നു മറ്റൊരു വാദം. അതിന് ആഴ്ചയിലൊരു ദിവസം അവസരം നൽകിയാൽ മതിയല്ലോ എന്ന് മറുവാദം. മാതൃഭൂമി റെഡ്മൈക്ക് ആണ് സംവാദത്തിന് ചുക്കാൻ പിടിച്ചത്.

Particiapants had a great discussion of the topic with the speakers and they were convinced that in one or the other stage we all will become differently abled and so we have to show empathy rather than sympathy to those people. The laws and rules should be made considering them too. Both the sessions were brainstorming and had made us to think in larger perspectives.
